

Owen's Mission

"A person's a person, no matter how small." -Dr. Seuss

In the classic Dr. Seuss story, Horton Hears a Who!, Horton, a friendly elephant, goes out of his way to save Whoville, a community smaller than a speck of dust, that others refuse to believe exists. Despite difficulty and ridicule, Horton succeeds, and the little people live.

Horton knows the truth that every life is valuable, and we do, too. In fact, the Bible tells us why every person, born or unborn, is valuable: Each person is a child created by God (Psalm 139:13-14), a brother or sister redeemed by Jesus (Galatians 3:13), and a beloved human being the Holy Spirit wants to call to faith (1 Timothy 2:4), no matter how small!

Lutherans For Life and Y4Life want to help YOU share the message that every life is valuable through our Owen's Mission project! The goal of Owen's Mission is for every Lutheran elementary and high school in the country to have a set of Touch of Life fetal models.

We want students to do three things:

- Understand the God-given value of each life from the moment of fertilization.
- Be motivated by what God has done as our Creator, Redeemer, and Sanctifier to share the message of life with others.
- Value themselves and others, born and unborn, because of this God-given value.

Looking for ways to support Owen's Mission?
Here's what you can do:

- Reach out to administrators of your Lutheran school and ask them to set up an Owen's Mission presentation.
- Encourage your Lutheran school to own an Owen's Mission fetal model set for their school.
- Pray for the message of LIFE to reach students and for youth to embrace the message!
